MASKED MEN TAKE BANDIT FROM JAIL

Jailer Told to Put His Hands Up While the Escape Effected

MEN GUARD DOOR AS YEGG LEAVES

Posse Is Organized to Scour Country.
Farm Raided

(By Associated Press)

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 8.—A masked bandit assisted by four others help up the county jail at Jay, Okla., county seat of Delaware county, last night and released Ed Lockhart, notorious bank bandit, according to a special dispatch to The Times-Democrat from Grove, early this morning.

According to the dispatch the bandit ordered Jack Carey, the jailer, and a companion to "stick 'em up." The jailer was unarmed. He was commanded to unlock the jail door and the cell in which Lockhart was being held. In the meantime two masked men stood guard at the jail door while two others guarded the windows to the jail.

After the cell door was opened, Lockhart was told to "get ready," while the jailer and his companion were forced to stand with their faces to the wall. After Lockhart, who was seated on his cot in the cell had secured his hat he was rushed to an automobile waiting outside the jail, where two of his companions waited with him while the other three locked the jailer and his companion in the jail.

After the bandits and his aides had sped away the jailer effected his escape and notified the sheriff of Lockhart's escape. Poses were formed immediately and this morning are scouring the country in search of the bandits.

One posse was sent to the farm of Pete Baker on whose farm Lockhart was captured last Thursday, with orders to place him under arrest and hold him pending investigation of the escape.

RALLY DAY IS HELD AT SUNDAY SCHOOL

The annual fall rally day of the Sunday school of the First Presbyterian church was held in the new auditorium of the school. The enrollment of the school yesterday was large and a generous collection was taken for the work of 'Sunday School extension.'

The Berry Bible class, Mrs. John D. Wyker, teacher, Mrs. Kingsbury, president, was instrumental in soliciting old and new members for the Sunday school, as was the other organized classes of the school.

The preliminary services were conducted by A. A. Jones, Superintendent of the school assisted by John D. Wyker, Superintendent emeritus. The pastor of the church, Dr. James D. Wallace, led the opening prayer.

The orchestra of the First Presbyterian Sunday School, rendered the musical numbers, with the skill and enthusiasm usually seen in the members of the orchestra.

The line of march which was formed in the far east room of the church, was in charge of Mrs. Fred S. Hunt and other leaders of the intermediate and primary departments, came down the south aisles of the church and marched into the large beautiful Sunday School room stepping to the music furnished by the orchestra.

It was after the children were finally seated and made comfortable in the Sunday school room that the program was rendered.

Class Enrollment Breaks Records

The membership enrollment of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday school reached 106 yesterday morning, perhaps the largest enrollment in the history of the school. The class contest now on between the "Whites" and the "Blues" showed the "Blue" workers still leading by a handsome margin.

An unusual addition was made to the class from the car department Sunday morning, when Forman Thomas as Hodson succeeded in bringing close to 50 carmen to the class. C. W. Matthews, the president was out of the city yesterday. The lesson was taught with force and enthusiasm by Rev. W. A. Woodward, pastor of the Jackson street church of Christ.

A short address was made by Rev. Noble R. Edwards, the regular teacher of the class.

TWO NEW PETS REACH WHITE HOUSE

Peter Pan and Laddie Buck

Two dogs, recent gifts of friends to President Calvin Coolidge, have reached the White House kennels. They are "Peter Pan," a full-blooded fox terrier, and "Laddie Buck," an Airedale, half-brother to the late President Harding's famous dog.

FASHIONABLE HOTEL SCENE OF HOLDUP

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Three armed men early today held up the night manager and several other employees of the fashionable Ritz-Carlton hotel and robbed a jewelry store off the lobby of $5,000 worth of gems.

The robbery occurred at 2:30 a. m. Charley Chaplin, who entered the hotel lobby 15 minutes after the bandits fled was the first outsider to learn of it. Not until five hours later, after hotel employees had led to all the robbers and failed was the hold-up reported to police.

Entering the hotel at the main concourse, the bandits, who were well dressed men and armed, called for the night manager and ordered him to put his hands up. A porter, a bell boy and elevator operator were herded into an elevator cage and held prisoner.

Woman Is Sought For Death of Man

(Associated Press.)

BAY MINETTE, ALA., Oct. 8.—Authorities today were searching for Mrs. Emma Drath, of Daphney, who is charged with slaying W. H. Ray, Bay Minette hardware merchant, late last night.

According to officers, the woman met Ray near his boarding house on Hoyle avenue, and shot him down, making her escape before she could be apprehended. Search for the woman so far as proved futile.

MORE STEAM DAILY IN BIG AUTO CAMPAIGN, VOTES COUNT MOST

Candidates Speed Up as First Extra Vote Period Approaches and Entries Attempt to Get in Largest Count—Ambitious Ones Finding Effort Pleasing and Profitable—Ample Room for

Today the great automobile contest started off with a rush. This is the last week of the first extra vote period. This week is the time that you must use to win.

As was announced Saturday, during this period for every $15 you turn in you get 150,000 extra votes, and you are entitled to as many as you can secure, as long as you abide by the rules of the campaign. And you do not have to turn in at any one time in order to have them count. This is the time when you should be working for dear life. While you are working there will be no one who is likely to pass you by, but do not stop or if you do, someone who is working to win the big Buick four touring car, without spending any money to do so, is going to pass you. Are you going to let anyone pass you? Of course you are not.

The first extra vote period will not be extended one minute beyond the time set for its close. Neither will it be repeated during the campaign. That is the way the present management conducts its contest. There is no foolishness and no "monkey business." If you want the big Buick or some of the other valuable prizes badly enough and have the ambition to put in your spare hours securing votes for yourself, then you can win. You cannot possibly lose—everyone wins something. Remember there is a cash commission for the persons who do not win a grand prize.

And the campaign management will do all it can consistently to help you. All you need is just the ambition. But if you haven't the ambition you will be treated just as fairly and all the votes you receive by the gift of your friends will be credited to you; but here is no time in this cam-

BIG SUM IN CASH TAKEN FROM SAFE

Piggly-Wiggly Store Is Robbed of Nearly $800 in Money

DOOR OF SAFE IS HAMMERED OFF

Chisels Used to Break
Cash Drawer Door
By the Yeggmen

With no trace left behind them as to their identity, two or more thieves are doubtless now entertaining a guilty conscience and holding on to close to $750.00 taken Sunday morning near 2 o'clock from the iron safe of the Piggly-Wiggly store on Second Avenue.

William C. Papenburg, manager of the Piggly-Wiggly store, stated this morning that policemen showed him where the thieves had entered the east end basement door of the Second Avenue store, where they had forced the strong trap door leading up to the business floor of the store. The safe containing between $700 and $800, according to Mr. Papenburg, stood just at the head of the basement stairs.

"It seems the thieves made their first effort on the hinges of the safe, tearing them off, then they took what must have been a sledge hammer and beat up the combination lock. Then with three or more coal chisels, two plain ones and one bearing the initials 'L. & N. R. E.', the thieves cut the rivets that held the large front safe door, until the bushes or more of concrete in the door was removed, making it easy for the 'lock' lever to become displaced. Then the money was available and they took it."

Mr. Papenburg explained that his whole Saturday's work in money was in the safe, and that the loss of the safe itself amounted to $140.00.

There were certainly two or three workers on the ill-fated safe, it is explained, and that as a matter of course some confederates must have been on the outside looking around for the police and other "natural enemies."

An effort was made to remove the heavy roller-top desk which stood just in front of a back window on the business floor of the building, Mr. Papenburg explained this morning, saying he believed the robbers would have preferred to have made their exit by another way from which they came, to make assurance doubly sure against an ambush by police.

The desk was very heavy, however, and as it offered strong resistance the thieves went out the same way as they came in.

The police are optimistic as to the final capture of the Sunday morning safe robbers, and a wide police net is being spread for the apprehension of those who made a very crude safe robbery here, but got away with it.

SPECIAL SERVICE IS HELD AT CHURCH

The special service at the Westminster Presbyterian church, led by the men of the church Sunday night, was well attended and number of the members of the church took part in the service, in addition to Dr. L. F. Goodwin, the pastor.

The meeting was presided over by E. C. Payne who made the first address, the speaker stressing the importance of every member of the church doing his and her part during the coming winter.

"The Relation of the Church to young people" was the subject of an inspiring address by E. F. Baird. A. H. Higson spoke from the subject "What can we do for the church."

In his address on "Church Finances" Henry C. Hartung, stressed the need of tithing as set forth in the Bible.

The music of the evening was furnished in an acceptable manner by the "Houck Orchestra."

Selma Suffers Big Loss From Fire

(By Associated Press)

SELMA, Ala., Oct. 8.—Fire which burned during the entire night destroyed the Central Alabama Lumber company's plant, the coal chute of the Southern Railway and 13 railroad cars causing an estimated loss of $150,000. The fire was said to have originated in a boiler room of the lumber plant.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Oct. 6.—Coach Charlie Brown contented himself by sending the Birmingham-Southern Panthers for a jaunt around the track Friday before leaving for Montgomery to meet Auburn.

NEGRO ADMITS HE MURDERED NURSE

Hood's Doctor Says He Crushed Victim's
Head With Rock

SCENE RE-ENACTED WITH DETECTIVES

Woman Unwilling to Pay Bill For Curing
Her "Love Ills"

(By Associated Press.)

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 8.—Miss Elsie Barthell, 28 year old nurse, was killed by Alonzo Savage, negro hood doctor, when she refused to give him $395 for curing her "love ill" according to a confession which city detectives said the negro made early today. The confession according to Captain of Detectives Neff was made after Savage was taken to the scene of the crime shortly after midnight.

Under the glare of automobile headlights, Captain Neff said Savage re-enacted the details of his movements when he met the nurse beneath the portico of a deserted east end mansion.

The negro confessed, Captain Neff said, that he struck the nurse in the face when she grabbed the money out of his hand, felled her with a brick and then dropped a 70 pound chunk of marble on her head. As she fell, Miss Barthell cried "I'll give it to you." Savage is said to have told the detectives, but the negro stepped to the outside of the portico and pushed the loose marble block from the wall, crushing the victim's head.

Details of the confession made public by the captain recited how Miss Barthell met Savage while they were employed by an east end physician, the woman as a nurse and the negro as a butler. The nurse learned of Savage's ability as a fortune teller and approached him when she had difficulties with her sweetheart.

Savage gave her six cards held together with a black pin, and told her Saturday night.

The charm would work if she returned the cards to him and paid $395 on the spot. They met under the portico late that night and Miss Barthell handed Savage the cards, and an envelope containing the money. When Savage announced that the "cure" had worked, the nurse grabbed the money from his hand. Then followed the killing, Savage picked up the money, but in his haste dropped the blood-marked cards. It was these cards which led to the arrest of the butler. In his home they said they found a deck of cards with six missing. The cards found near the body completed the deck.

Walter Hauke, a taxi cab driver and friend of Miss Barthell was taken to central police station for questioning. While talking with detectives, Hauke said Savage who was being held as a suspect. Hauke then identified Savage as the negro he had carried in his cab to the east end district on Saturday night. Savage, up to that time had maintained his innocence, but when Hauke identified him, he confessed, it was said.

Visitors Loudly Praise the Fair

Returning visitors to Hartselle report the fair which closed there Saturday night as one of the very best of its kind ever seen in the Tennessee Valley the racing proved exciting with large crowds watching the results. Especial attention has been given during the fair to farm exhibits as pointed out by Mr. Morgan County. The prize of $50.00 for the best milk cow was awarded Saturday night. The pure bred cattle at the fair are mostly Jerseys, stated J. W. Clopton, who has taken a large interest in the success of the fair.

"A case in point of where hogs pay came to my attention at the Hartselle fair," stated Mr. Clopton.

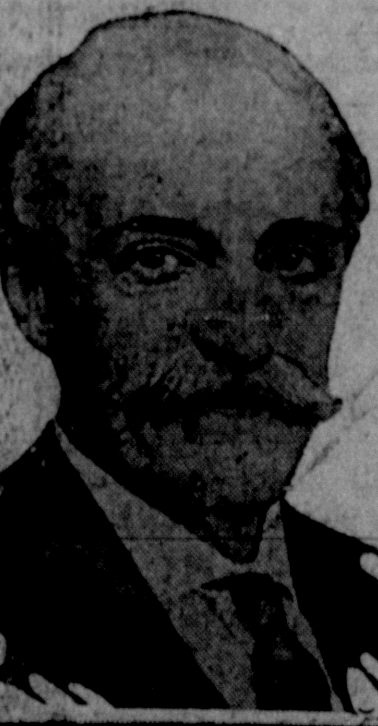

W. L. McCutcheon had a young sow with six pigs. Those pigs were selling at $15.00 a head or $90.00 in all, almost clear money for Mr. McCutcheon.

"He had fed sow and pigs and skimmed milk almost exclusively. What McCutcheon did can be done by almost any farmer with a little extra trouble, and at next to no expense."

Full Report on Revival Later

The Morgan County pastor's union met in regular session this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the R. R. Y. M. C. A. The regular routine of business was taken up and disposed of. The question as to the number who have joined the several churches of the community as a result of the Ham-Ramsay revival meeting was taken up and discussed, but as full data could not be secured a full report was promised by Dr. C. C. Davison, chairman of the publicity committee, later.

Governor Pinchot Orders Dry Law Enforcement

Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, has sent State troopers to the 1,300 saloons in Philadelphia, ordering them to close forthwith. Raids on 700 places already have been made. The entire State must stay dry, the Governor orders.

"TRUE VS. FALSE" SERMON SUBJECT

Dr. James A. Duncan, pastor of the First Methodist church of Decatur, is preaching a series of sermons, directed especially to the young on the topical subject "The True Versus the False."

Dr. Duncan's subject next Sunday will be on "Reason Control Versus Passion Control."

The morning and evening services at the First Methodist church were both well attended, and the song service rendered, was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

The text of Dr. Duncan last night was Psalm 73:28. "It is good for me to draw near to God."

The Psalmist, like many another thoughtful man, is greatly perplexed. He is wondering why the wicked prosper. He is wondering why a man regardless not only of God, but regardless of good, should have apparently no troubles of any sort, while there were so many good men who suffered in every way. He grows despondent because it does not square with his ideas of a just God. "As for me," he says, "my feet had well nigh slipped. I was envious of the foolish, when I saw the prosperity of the wicked."

His ideas of God were the ideas of his day; that goodness and material prosperity ought to go hand in hand.

He begins on another line, his own personal experience, and says: that although these things are true, and these things seem good to him, there is another good. Whatever may be the lot of other men: "As for me, it is good to draw near to God." What ever may be our thoughts concerning the value of material prosperity, one thing is certain, and there is one certain good: "It is good for me to draw near to God."

The very first thought of God is good for a man. It is said of the wicked, that God is not in all their thoughts. No matter how a man may prosper in material things, if he does not prosper in his character, these things are of but little value. They can buy houses and lands and pleasures and luxuries, but they cannot buy peace of mind. That must come from a much higher source. It is good for any man to begin to think about God. He is the highest object of thought and the only really satisfying portion for any man.

The first feeling of the need of God in the life of a man is good. Absorbed as men are in the ordinary pursuits of life, with thought and feeling wrapped up in the gratifying of certain ambitions pertaining to business or pleasure, it is indeed good when the thought of God enters into the mind, and a feeling of the need for God is first born within them. Life then begins to be a bigger and a more worth while thing then. Why should any man be content with only a material life, when here is also within his reach the vast universe of the immortal. Thought and feeling and the power of choice go vastly further than gold and jewels and precious stones. Men are always trying to draw near to these things that they can feel and touch and taste, in spite of their own experience that these things do not, ever fully satisfy. They cheat themselves into thinking that while this diamond does not sparkle to suit me, if I can only get hold of another but the very smallest diamond will reflect the same varied lights that the largest diamond will, and there is no essential difference between the two.

The man who draws near to God finds this great good among others he begins to see life in its true proportions, and to measure values according to their real values. He puts his

PEOPLE URGED TO REDUCE THE LOSS

Proclamation Is Issued
By President City
Commission

LIST OF DON'TS IS MADE PUBLIC

Fire Chief Sorber Asks
Co-operation of Every Citizen

To the Citizens of Decatur:

We hear much today of the necessity of additional production. We hear too little of the necessity of the prevention of waste. The fire losses of the United States last year reached the staggering total of $311,000,000, most of which experts tell us could have been prevented. The loss of life and other injuries sustained through such carelessness and waste are beyond calculation. The yearly per capita fire waste in our country is about six times that of Europe. The need of exercise of greater precaution here cannot be too strongly emphasized, as our city furnished its proportion of property thus destroyed.

Now, therefore, I, Jas. A. Nelson, president of city commission of Decatur, realizing the assuming on the part of our people of an increased responsibility in this matter, will result in many benefits to our city, such as lessening of the loss of life and the saving of our property and earning power, and the lowering of insurance rate, do hereby designate the week of Oct. 7 to 13, as Fire Prevention week here, and urge the citizens to our schools, homes, and places of exercise for the education of the children as to the dangers of fire and the enormous losses caused by negligent use, and that during said week there be a general cleaning up by the removal of all debris and rubbish that constitute a fire menace, and in addition thereto that every effort possible be made to educate the public in assisting to avoid the enormous preventable fire waste of our country, state and city.

James A. Nelson,
President City Commission

The campaign in this city for the prevention of fire began Sunday (yesterday) and will continue for six days. Chief W. H. Sorber will lead the campaign. He will insist that all chimneys be cleaned at once, before the winter fires are built, that all rubbish be removed and all other fire hazards. He will furnish information to all as to the approved means for fire prevention.

The Chief is displaying an attractive poster showing a home owner and a business man, and "Uncle Sam" self being choked by a snake, and on its coils are written the warning words: "Matches," "Rubbish," "smoking," "Sparks on Roofs," "Defective chimneys and flues," "Electricity misused," "Incendiarism" and "Spontaneous Combustion." The last named fire cause is made the small "tail end" of the serpent.

Mr. Sorber stated: "In 1922 fire destroyed more than 15,000 lives and $521,800,000 in property." Mr. Sorber declared this was the largest fire loss ever known.

Mr. Sorber's general directions were as follows:

"Walls, ceiling and partitions should be shielded from the overheating of stoves, furnaces and pipes. Hot ashes belonging in metal containers, not on wooden boxes and barrels.

"Oil lamps or stoves are safety filled only by daylight.

"Open fires should always be screened.

"Accumulation of rubbish and litter are breeding places for fires; remember that the first law of fire prevention is cleanliness.

"A gas leak should not be hunted with an open flame light; use a flash light, and apply soap suds to the 'suspected' part of the pipe, so that the leak will reveal itself.

"Gasoline and other volatile liquids make dangerous cleaning fluids; many safe compounds are on the market, including carbon tetrachloride, which is obtainable at any drug store.

"Use proper fuses in electrical circuits; the fuse is the safety valve of the system, and should not be tampered with.

"Turn off electric flat irons and other heating devices while attending to something else.

"Defective chimneys and flues caused $15,000,000 destruction last year; they should be kept in repair.

"Before winter comes all smoke pipes should be cleaned of soot; if they are clogged, they may overheat and start fires when the furnace is operated.

"Don't look for a gas pipe leak with an open light."

MEET TONIGHT
A called meeting of Albany lodge No. 491 A. F. and A. M. for the purpose of conferring E. A. degree. All masons cordially invited. By order of the worshipful master J. T. Christinger, secretary.

The other way to make this an ideal community would be to reduce the number of fires for a year.

The Turks have adopted a republican form of government. Their course has not increased the popularity of a pure democracy.

The fate of the convicts in Kentucky shows once more that it is better to be on the outside looking in than on the inside looking out.

In the meantime the statement that Henry Ford will not bid again on the Shoals should be taken with a good deal of latitude.

A thing only the experienced know, namely, that persons be peppery and still have a lot of hard common sense.

Most of the storms we pass through are only imaginary, or else we would be old and ugly beyond recognition.

It is said the President will call on the governors to enforce the prohibition laws when he gets them to Washington. If Mr. Coolidge is as hard as the tasks he sets, hard boiled but mildly describes him.

What a howl will ascend from the Fatherland. Poincare proposes to quarter French soldiers in them and make the towns people support them. That looks like somebody had actually won the war.

THE LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE WORKS ACCEPTABLY THROUGH "Y"

A good local work that has been kept up in part for around 20 years by the Louisville and Nashville railroad is the Young Men's Christian Association. The railroad has not only kept the local Association going, in part, but in very large part.

It is no secret that but for the fact the railroad has made its appropriations to the Association and kept up the repairs on the building in season and out of season, the Y. M. C. A. would have been closed long years ago.

In all the campaigns for funds for the Association the railroad and its employees have taken a leading and generous part.

With the aid of contributions from this community the Louisville and Nashville railroad built the present Association building about 20 years ago, and it has been open day and night ever since.

The Association became a possibility only as the railroad was interested by Y. M. C. A. men desirous of carrying on such Christian activities as were initiated by Sir George Williams over a century ago among clerks and accountants in London, England.

It was the idea of Williams to furnish a place where young men coming to the great city could have a Christian environment and be surrounded by Christian men—hence the name "Young Men's Christian Association."

It was the idea of Williams to furnish a place Louisville and Nashville Christian Association to furnish a place where all the men of the community, especially those employed by the railroad, could have such opportunities as Sir George Williams sought to provide, only on a much larger scale.

The local Association has furnished all the activities it has seemed possible to interest the men of the community in—and many times in has seemed more advantages were offered than the people generally seemed to care to take advantage of.

It is auspicious that at this time such a large number of men of the city, of the shops and of those in the transportation department of the railroad, have put their membership in the local Association. At no time in the past have so many men of the Y. M. C. A. been so well for the men who have joined and of the management of the Association that close to 1,700 men and boys are now on the rolls of the Association.

It is doubtless in appreciation of the increased membership of the local "Y" that an effort is now being made to erect at an early date an addition to the original Y. M. C. A. building, to be used as a gymnasium and auditorium. It is understood the Louisville and Nashville railroad authorities are taking a leading part in the new move, and what they and others propose to do toward the erection of the new addition will be greatly appreciated by the community at large.

One way to keep out of trouble is to think of going into it, and then think better of it.

MUSIC NOT APPRECIATED UNTIL IT CEASES—NEWSPAPER PUBLICITY SAME

The web pressmen's strike in New York has not only taught the general public to appreciate the newspapers more, but it has been the means of opening the eyes of many advertisers to what they would miss were it as hard to get to get their goods before the people at all times as it was during the pressmen's strike in New York City. Some valuable conclusions have been drawn by business men from the effects of the idle New York presses.

When the newspaper presses slowed down in New York business slowed down, and all but came to a stand still.

It is estimated that business fell off on the whole 50 per cent during the pressmen's strike from the beginning to the end of it.

Merchants sought out their regular customers by wire; they tried printing their own sheets, showing prices; they tried all kinds of schemes, but to little purpose. Business did not pick up and start on the road to "normalcy" until the big advertisements began to tell the people what was in store for them at the stores.

The following oft printed editorial by Arthur Brisbane has a bearing on business now after the pressmen's strike has passed into history:

"With the newspapers of New York, limited in space, carrying little or no advertising during the pressmen's strike, just ending, merchants have learned what leaders among them always knew—that newspapers do for business what bumble bees and other insects do for flowers and fruits. Newspapers carry news from stores to public, as insects carry pollen from flower to flower.

"Merchants showed great ingeniousness mailing news of special sales and bargains to all customers whose addresses they possessed. But it was makeshift at best, not the American way.

"Take for instance the advertising customers of the New York paper edited by the writer, with the assistance of abler men, goes to 650,000 families. To mail a circular with one-cent stamp to each of those families would cost $6,500 for postage only.

"It would cost at least as much more to print, fold, address and mail the 650,000 circulars.

"They would not carry with them the features that cause a newspaper with its advertising to go through the hands of the entire family. Merchants will agree that advertising in circulars, given away, has not one-fifth the value of store news as distributed through paid advertising.

"But, leaving that aside, to send a full page circular to all buyers of the paper referred to would cost at least $13,000. A full page advertisement costs on the average less than $3,000, which includes actual delivery into the hands of a man or woman that wants the paper and is willing to pay three cents for it and read it. It must be added that the merchant with his store news even more important to the newspaper than the newspaper to the merchant.

"Year in and year out that merchants apply to newspapers in their paid advertising is the most important of news to the housewife, and she is the readermost worth while.

"The energy of merchants makes possible the modern newspaper, its completeness, its collecting of news, regardless of cost, to say nothing of large salaries paid to young gentlemen that lead 'care-free' lives as newspaper editors or writers."

Mr. Brisbane might have added that advertisers are creators of wealth in a very important sense, for once they create the desire and demand for goods, it is characteristic of the human race for its members to get busy with ways and means for satisfying their desires.

character in the light of the character of God, and sees what is worth while, and what is of so little account that he can even smile at himself for his folly in giving his best energies to things of so little real, abiding value. It is not good for any man to stay away from God. To be separated from Him is to try to live while separated from a life, a degree of folly that is so obvious that it is hardly worth while to discuss it for a moment. Let the sinner draw near to God, and his sin is taken from him. Let the sorrowing draw near to God, and he is given beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, and the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness. Let any man draw near to God, and he finds that the experience of his Psalmist has become his experience, and he joyfully cries: "It is good for me to draw near to God."

Way Is Opened For Impeachment Fight

(Associated Press.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 8.—Preparation for the test of strength between members of the state legislature and Governor J. C. Walton that will follow a convening of the legislature Thursday, moved forward today with a calmness that was in marked contrast to the stormy days through which the state has recently passed.

The session, summoned by Governor J. C. Walton, two days after a call had been issued by a majority of the members of the house, threw down the bar and opened the way for the impeachment fight.

Vigoroso Old Age

WHY separate youth and old age with a deep and ever-widening abyss? The bloom of youth and the hardy, ruddy glow of Old Age—sixteen and sixty—should be separated only by the span of years and not by varying differences of physical wholesomeness.

Vigorous old age is within the grasp of all. S. S. S. brings that hale and hearty feeling back with a rush. Rich red blood is the greatest enemy of weakening, health undermining Old Age. S. S. S. builds Red Blood Cells. Rich, red blood coursing through your veins sweeps away impurities that retard the proper functioning of your system. Old Age—once a dreaded agony becomes a vigorous, enjoyable, care free time of life.

S. S. S. is made of carefully selected herbs and barks—scientifically prepared and proportioned. Welcome Old Age when it comes. Be ready to withstand the attacks of diseases that follow in its wake. Meet Old Age with a hearty handshake. A handshake that speaks of well being—of a vigorous, clear thinking, red blooded constitution. S. S. S. is your best friend when Old Age is seen rounding the corner. Get a bottle and drive care and worry away. All leading drug stores carry it. The large size is the more economical.

Thousands of new friends for MERRY WIDOW FLOUR

Sales of MERRY WIDOW Flour in 1922 were 511,756 bags more than in 1920. It is not only holding its old friends, but is making new ones at a rapid rate in spite of the many imitations now on the market.

No wonder MERRY WIDOW Self-Rising Flour is such a favorite. It already contains the right amount of pure ingredients for making delicious biscuits. You save the usual time of mixing, and good results are assured. Better still, it reduces the cost of good bread to a minimum. Think of it, a nickel's worth of MERRY WIDOW Flour makes at least 33 biscuits, regular size.

MERRY WIDOW Self-Rising Flour is made by the Ford Flour Company, millers since 1895, the originators of self-rising flour. Try it. You will never change. Ask for it by name.

Tanlac Never Fails Her, Declares Nurse

Mrs. Cora Lynch, a well-known practical nurse, residing at 3826 Avenue C (Avondale), Birmingham, Ala., recently gave out the following statement regarding the Tanlac treatment: "For three or four years I had suffered from a combination of stomach, liver and kidney disorders, could not assimilate my food, and was almost constantly suffering from pains in different parts of my body. "Some of these pains were caused by gas and swelling of the stomach and others from gall stones. Finally I got relieved of the gall stones through an operation but my stomach trouble and liver and kidney weakness remained with me until I took Tanlac. I began taking Tanlac more as an experiment, having very little faith in it; but now I always rely on it. I keep it in the house, take it when not feeling right, and am never disappointed. Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

CARRELL Furniture Co.

Getting Your Money's Worth

A range is meant to last years. Before you spend your good money you must know what to look for in a range:

- 1st. Fuel economy
- 2nd. Quick heating
- 3rd. Better Baking
- 4th. Quicker hot water
- 5th. Beauty and convenience

That's what to look for. The Mascot Range is the only one which embodies all these points, for by a new patented principle, the HEAT GOES ALL AROUND THE OVEN. This

1. Saves one-third or more fuel
2. Heats much quicker
3. Bakes better; even on all sides
4. Heats water in one-half the time.
5. The Mascot in addition to the above exclusive points has all the real beauty and convenience of any good range

The Way Dicky Gave Madge Something to Think About

DICKY'S tone was so unaccountably imperative that I looked at him in amazement. It is not like him to be curious about anything which does not concern ourselves, and one voice in the hall could not be mistaken as belonging to any person other than Mrs. Marks, our flamboyant neighbor whom he had disliked ever since his first meeting with her.

"Mrs. Marks and one of her friends," I murmured in as low a tone as I could manage, but Dicky muttered an impatient and insistent "Hush!" and I listened with him to the animated colloquy going on outside the door.

"Well, of all things," Mrs. Marks' high-pitched voice had said as she opened the door. "Mollie! What ever are you doing here at this time of day?"

"I didn't go to work this morning," I said. "The answer was in the surprisingly well-modulated contralto of Mollie Fawcett, the girl with the English name and the Southern European type of beauty, whose personality had so interested me the day before."

"Didn't go to work?" Mrs. Marks shrieked. "How's that?"

"I didn't get home until three o'clock."

"That's no excuse for you." There was a maternally reproving note in Mrs. Marks' tone. "I've known you to dance all night and go to work as fresh as a daisy the next morning."

"I know. But on Nell!" the fresh young tones had a tinge of excitement in them. "I had SUCH a queer adventure last night—I didn't go to sleep for hours after I got home, thinking about it and I just couldn't go to work this morning with I had told you about—you're all the mother or sister I ever had, you know."

Madge Is Wary.
"Well, come along in and spill it," Mrs. Marks boomed in a mollified tone. "My Pete's just getting up, but I'll pack him off in a hurry—he don't want anything but a cup of coffee and rolls, and then we'll have a chance to talk."

The closing of the Marks' door down the hall punctuated her sentence with a period, and Dicky spoke lazily, with an apparently careless yawn.

"Who's the dame whose only feminine relative is our flamboyant friend next door?" he asked. "Heaven will have to protect the working girl," he hummed the old couplet. "If Mrs. Marks is the only safeguard she has."

Somewhere within my conscious mind I was thinking of a warning bell. What it meant I did not know, but whenever I hear it, I am wary—and chary of speech until I am sure of my ground.

"When Do the Crowd Get Here?"
"I am not sure," I said slowly, "but her voice sounds like that of a girl to whom Mrs. Marks introduced me one day. I believe all her relatives were killed in a fire when she was little, and Mrs. Marks brought her up."

Dicky lit a cigarette with meticulous attention to the rite.

"Voice doesn't sound like the bringing up of Mrs. Marks," he drawled. "Do her looks match her voice or is she like her mentor?"

"I really didn't notice her looks particularly," I said nonchalantly. "She is dark, quite pretty—I judged mentally to Mollie's exquisite brunette beauty—and with nice eyes. Her name is Mollie Fawcett."

"But that's an English name," Dicky said, hastily then stopped abruptly. I looked at him with apparently careless inquiry, although my pulses were hammering.

"Why should she have an English name?" I asked.

"No reason at all," he answered promptly. "Except that your description sounded sort of foreign. But for the love of Mike, can't you talk about anything except Mrs. Marks and her friends? I'm getting mighty fed up with that bunch. Suppose you cut it out for an hour or two at least. When do the crowd get here?"

I held back the obvious and humorous comment that I had not mentioned my neighbors except in direct answer to his own questions. Instinctively I was on my guard against this sudden pretense of irritation on Dicky's part. There was something odd back of this sudden questioning—something which I meant to reason out later, and I did not wish my fancifully begoggled by any scrupulous debate with him.

I, therefore, ignored his comment, and answered his questions.

"Lillian and Marion at five, the others at six."

"You'll need me before four then, will you?" he asked. "I really ought to get over to the studio. I'll shave and make a sneak, if you don't mind."

"HE MUST BE—"

By Juanita Hamel

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Schindler Studio

HE must be—what must he be, this Man of her Dreams? Talk of course; so that she can be "just as high as his heart." Handsome, too; after the manner of men whose hearts are as true as their eyes are bright. And he must have black hair—for contrast with what the Little Love—her Messenger—calls her glint-of-gold curls. But first of all this Man of her Dreams must be a MANLY MAN.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Love That's Like Measles

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THE man who has been engaged to be married so many times—and left at the church every time by the same girl—is engaged to a nice quiet little English girl who has begun making the monograms on her table linen already.

It wouldn't surprise me in the least if the girl who's left him at the church so many times would be waiting at the foot of the altar for him when he waits in with the girl who knows enough to know what she wants when she wants it.

What a nuisance people are who think one thing on Monday and another on Tuesday and find themselves absolutely fascinated by "perhaps" and "maybe" and "won't hear to a thing" if they must answer a plain "yes" or "no" and let it go at that.

I'd Congratulate Him

I don't know the young man who's been left at the church so many times. If I did I'd telegraph and congratulate him on his new engagement.

I hope he'll have sense enough to realize his luck and stick to it.

A girl with a fickle heart is just about as much use as a prime donna with a fickle voice or an automobile with one of those carburetors that go like a watch on Monday and think they had better not try the hill on Tuesday.

I knew a girl once who was engaged to be married to a naval officer. He was far away in the South Seas and he wrote to her every day, and every night he sat upon deck in the moonlight and thought about her, and he bored everybody to death showing her picture and telling how beautiful and good and devoted she was.

He loaded himself down with presents for her. Silk scarfs from India, carved jade from China, bracelets from Japan, and an embroidered dressing gown with bees' wings set into the stitches. This he brought from Java—perfumes from the flower fields of Persia, attar of roses, and violets that smelled of the dew, old lace and pearls—nothing interested him unless it was for the girl or about the girl or something that she would wear or use in some way.

When he landed in San Francisco the girl was not at the dock to meet him.

She was too busy to come down to the ship. In fact, she was away on her honeymoon. We all thought the man would die or go crazy or kill himself, but in three weeks he was married to a brand new girl and he gave her the jade and the bracelet and the embroidered robe and the lace and the pearls, and she looked a good deal better in them than the other girl would have looked.

I met the four of them at a party the other night, and you could see as plain as day that each one was wondering how on earth any one could ever have imagined that there was a thing in the world in that first love affair.

Romantic—well, I should hardly call it that. It's true though, just the same.

He Should Thank His Stars

Love, to some people, is a sort of disease like the measles. They are exposed to it, catch it, go through all the stages, recover and look back and marvel at the fools they have made of themselves. That's the sort of people who break engagements and run away from good wives and elope from perfectly agreeable husbands.

Real people seldom have the measles after they are twenty-one years old.

And a girl of twenty-three or four who jilts a man on the eve of her wedding is just a silly little fibbertigibbet, and the man ought to thank his lucky stars that she left him before she married him—and not afterwards.

Here's to you, Mr. Left-at-the-church. Your guardian angel was certainly looking after you when the first girl jilted you with so much glee, and such an amount of publicity.

Advice to Girls

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

1—How should a girl accept a dance?

2—When a girl is car-riding with a man and another couple and the man puts his arm round her, what should she say?

3—If a young man whom you care for only as a friend puts "Loving" at the end of his letters, should you ignore it or speak about it? I wish to keep this young man's friendship, and don't want to offend him.

4—Should a girl suggest the hour of departure from a dance?

BUBBLES: 1—Tell the young man that you will be very happy to dance with him.

2—You might say that you are uncomfortable.

3—Ignore the close of the young man's letter. He will probably imitate the tone of your letter in a short while.

4—She may.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl nineteen years old. A short while ago I met a young man five years my senior, and I have learned to love him very much. He says he loves me, but sometimes acts coolly and goes to other places and doesn't come to see me.

He has often talked of marriage, but has never set a date. I am very jealous. He does not want me to be jealous, and has told me if I did not give it up he would turn me down and this would almost break my heart. Can you tell how I can find out whether this man really loves me? Kindly advise me how to rid myself of jealousy.

JEALOUS: Jealousy is a terrible fault, my dear. It destroys love. Just have faith in your fiance and faith in his love for you. He does love you, or he would not have asked you to become his wife.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two girls in our teens. We are in love with two young men a little older than we.

1—Is it proper for them to call us by telephone and ask us to meet them at a certain place?

2—Is it also proper to go automobile-riding with these young men unchaperoned?

3—Should we permit them to hold our hands and hug and kiss us?

Why You Should Not Fear If You Develop Cataract

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

EVERY little while somebody writes me in great distress, because of the fear of impending blindness.

This is a beautiful world. The trees and the grass, the plants and the vines—how restful they are to the eye. How they soothe and refresh the spirit. The birds and the squirrels, the cattle in the pastures and the sheep on the moors—how they appeal to the best in us! The faces of our friends and the smiles of our dear ones—how could we live without seeing them!

Blindness is a terrible thing. The thought of it is terrifying. It goes to the heart like cold steel.

For more than thirty years my medical practice has included the eye and its diseases. I have seen and talked with thousands of blind folks. They have related their experiences to me.

God is good. Somehow He has made the human soul so that it recedes itself to every step of necessity. Think of all the blind people you have met.

Did you ever know one who was not cheerful and happy, in spite of an affliction which seems dreadful beyond words?

Kind persons are much happier. I judge that persons who are totally deaf. You can have a happy evening with a blind man. Conversation fills the ear. But unless you are an expert at the sign language, it is impossible to converse with a deaf person. The labor of writing may cause you to win the company of the deaf. Yet, even the knowledge of isolation sinks into the soul and embitters the victor.

Fortunately the most common causes for blindness are remediable or, at least, blindness from these causes can be overcome.

More than any other one thing, cataract is the cause of blindness in adults. I have often said that of all the serious things one can possibly have, cataract is the most satisfactory. It is the most satisfactory, because by a clever operation, quickly and painlessly done, with but three or four days in bed during convalescence, sight is restored.

Like lots of other dreadful ailments, cataract is a menacing and frightful thing to anticipate. Perhaps your mother or grandfather had cataract. You dread the prospect and, all your life, have feared the possibility of "inheriting" the trouble.

You may get out of your mind that you have to fear cataract, because some ancestors had it. It is not an inherited disease.

Let me give you this advice: If you think you are becoming blind, go at once to your oculist. The chances are you have no serious trouble at all. But find out for sure. If you really have beginning blindness, it may well be that something can be done to prevent it. In any event he will tell you what to do while the trouble is developing.

If the trouble is cataract, when it is ready it will be extracted. When the experience is all over you will be wiser at yourself for dreading a thing which, after all, is so easily remedied.

Answers to Health Questions

H. R. Q.—I am a girl fifteen years of age. Height five feet, five inches. Will you kindly tell me whether I will grow taller and what my correct weight should be?

A.—You will grow probably for several years. Your age and height you should weigh about 122 pounds.

K. Q.—Some time ago, I saw a remedy recommended by you in the paper for itching skin. Will you kindly tell me what it was?

A.—This preparation was probably hypophosphite of soda, one tablespoonful to four ounces of water. Apply the mixture to the affected part and allow it to dry.

C. E. S. Q.—I have a nephew who contracted a cold about one year ago. At the present time he is suffering from a sore throat, his ear, and the corners of his nose are traces of a discharge from the ear on his pillow. What would you suggest?

A.—This boy should consult an specialist without delay for an examination to determine whether the nasopharynx is affected and should be examined by the advice which the specialist will give after a careful examination.

E. M. B. Q.—Will you kindly advise me how to overcome the habit of biting my finger nails?

A.—Will you kindly advise me about —?

A.—Paint the finger tips with tincture of aloe, to keep them from becoming this habit.

A.—For full particulars, please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and restate your question.

How to Beautify Your Ears

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

FOR years now practically no one has thought of the beauty culture of the ears.

Why should ears, they thought, so utterly invisible, come in for care? They are the perfect beauty attention when the hands and the face and the hair and so many other things more visible were there to claim time and effort in beautifying processes.

Ears were always hidden by the hair, and this being the case, cleanliness seemed to be all they could demand.

But now the story is a different one. The smart coiffure demands that at least the pink lobe of your ear must show. And if it must show it must be beautiful.

So turn your attention to those ears of yours, you of the close coiffure and you of the bob. For which ever way you do your hair, there's likely to be a suggestion of ear if you make a point of being fashionable.

The Frenchwomen have gone in strongly for the coiffure that reveals the entire ear. They pull their hair straight back past their ears as tight as they can, and stick it down to their heads with repeated strokes of the comb.

When they finish plucking the hair, they knot low at the nape of the neck, we are told, they even go so far as to give their hair an added gloss by rubbing it with a bit of smooth soft velvet.

All this helps the hair to stay securely in place, and not even a single loose strand falls down over the ear. You can see why Frenchwomen must devote time and effort to cold-creaming the ears, giving them a coat of powder, and bringing out a bit of color at the end of the lobe.

There is much chatter about the lobe that is delicately tinted, much like the pink and white ear of a baby.

And this reminds me of another beauty precaution. You mothers who want to take an early beauty precaution for your little ones, be careful about their little ears. Never, never tie a baby's cap on so that the strings or the edge of the cap goes behind the ears. You can see that this forces the ears out from the head, and in these tender years the ears quickly grow out instead of back flat against the head.

Perhaps you are annoyed, yourself, by the fact that your ears do not grow as flat back against your head as you would like to have them. This may not have bothered you in the days of the huge wave of hair pulled well down over your ears, but now that your ears are emerging, it will cause you inconvenience.

You can remedy this by sleeping at night with a band of muslin fastened securely about your head. Have it wide enough entirely to cover your ears, holding them well back against your head.

Of course, in adopting any coiffure that happens to be fashionable, you must first determine whether or not it becomes you. If it doesn't, you may find some alteration of it that suits your style of beauty better. You will be much wiser to compromise on the new fashion than to compromise the least bit on becomingness.

For instance, if your ears really protrude from your head in a very lively way, you will do well to wave your hair back, letting it entirely cover the upper part of your ears, revealing only the lower quarter.

A coat of softening cream applied to the lobe of your ears at night, and a touch of powder by day, will enhance the charm of your coiffure.

By Annie Laurie

PETE AND JERRY: 1.—The young men should meet you at your homes, my dears, and nowhere else.

2.—No, not at night.

3.—It is not only improper, but very unwise to permit young men to whom you are not engaged to kiss and make love to you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I attend a theatre once or twice a week. There I have noticed a very attractive young man. How can I win his friendship?

DIMPLES: There is no possible way for you to win the young man's friendship. If he is interested in you, he will take the initiative in securing an introduction through a mutual friend.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

The evening head-dress is of wired metal lace to match the overskirt.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

Fish Facts That Every Good Cook Should Know.

THE economic value of fish is of the utmost importance to the home provider who is interested in making the budget reach as far as possible in feeding the family. There are excellent books on the subject with available markets for practical study where fishermen are always glad to help those who really want to know.

Americans, as a rule, are not fish-eating people. They are not really to blame for this, as they have had so many other foods to draw upon that they have neglected the profitable offerings of the sea. Economically speaking, this is a pity, but as a nation we are still in the kindergarten of thrift and do not realize how the sea can help reduce the cost of living.

We have eaten expensive foods in quantity for too long to make it easy for us to give them up without a struggle, even to advance our own interests. Allowing that fish is troublesome to prepare and cook economically, it is well worth the trouble as a matter of economy. During war stress we learned to do without certain varieties of food and to substitute others, and we found that to do so was not extremely difficult.

Let us make a study of the fish in the waters about us and learn when they are to be found in the markets. We should learn how to select fish, how to keep it, and above all how to cook it in the right way and serve it properly.

Frozen fish when caught and sent at once to the freezer is an excellent product. It is that which is frozen, the fish, then frozen again, and then given fish a bad reputation. Let the fish-buyer get to chatting with a good, experienced fishman on a morning he is not too busy to talk. She will learn much that may change her ideas on the subject of fish. Most marketers don't know one variety of fish from another. No wonder they are often fooled by unscrupulous dealers.

Fish cookery calls for as many different cookery methods as meat and fish. Sauce-making is one of the fine arts of good cookery. Well-cooked fish with suitable sauces should be the rule instead of the exception in all families where house-hold economy is practiced. It is an acknowledgment of economic ignorance to confess a lack of culinary interest in fish at all times of year.

There are laws that govern fish selection in all parts of the country where fish products are sold fresh from the water. A few general rules add the marketer, though they are not applicable to all fish in all climates. Just before spawning time, fish is generally at its best. After spawning, for a time, it is unfit for food. Fish out of season is a bluish tinge no matter how long it is boiled, but in its season it is firm, and the muscles bill white and curly.

White fish are more easily digested than the red fish, which are more oily. In choosing cod, for instance, it is well to know that it is best when it is plump and round near the tail, when the hollow behind the head is deep, and when the scales are undisturbed as if rippled. Press the finger into the side of the fish. If the dent fills again rapidly, the fish is nice and fresh. If the dent remains, the fish may be fresh, but it is not in perfect condition. Stiffness is another sign that it is not at its best.

Mrs. D. C. Vohlers was taken to the hospital this morning for radium treatment.

Mrs. O. Hulce of Nashville, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Hulce returning home today.

Mrs. Bernard Brown is able to be up after a severe illness.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Coffman of Birmingham are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Brown.

Miss Lavene Stroup is visiting with friends in Montgomery this week.

Mrs. Cosby of Hartselle, was the weekend guest of her daughter, Mrs. R. G. Sherrill.

Mrs. C. C. Robertson, has returned to her home following treatment at the Benevolent Hospital and is steadily regaining her health.

Mrs. Flora Schulman of Nashville is here the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Frank. Mrs. Schulman will probably return to Nashville on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wood, spent yesterday in Lawrence County.

AMOS-HARGROVE.

In the presence of a few relatives and friends G. Thomas Amos and Miss Mamie Hargrove were united in marriage on Saturday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. B. Roberts at his home at Chestnut Grove.

PICNIC.

Mrs. S. M. Thompson gave the members of her former Sunday school class of the First Christian Church a very enjoyable picnic on Saturday at River view avenue.

Games were played and at noon a lunch was spread and partaken of by the twelve little folks present. Mrs. Thompson was assisted in amusing them by Mrs. Mack Brown.

Mrs. H. W. Snyder, of California, will return home Monday after a two months visit to her mother, Mrs. Brown.

Misses Lelia and Lena Harper of Gullman are the guests of Mrs. Ben Rowe.

Mrs. Charles Rush and two sons, Charles, Jr., and Robert, returned last week from Greensboro, Ala., where they spent the past six months.

Miss Oliver Verner has returned to her home in Tuscaloosa, after a short visit to Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Bloodworth.

Miss Annie Randolph returned home Sunday after spending several days with her sister, Mrs. Joe Coker near Pulaski, Tenn.

Mrs. Molly Bryant, of Lawrence County is spending a few days with relatives in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lockem, of Sheffield, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Redding here.

Mrs. D. C. Vohlers underwent an operation of much seriousness this morning at the Benevolent Hospital. She is resting as easily as could be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Hough and daughter, Mrs. D. D. Burlison and Miss Olive Hough of Lacy Springs were here today.

PERSONALS

Zipp Newman, sports editor of the Birmingham News, was in the City Sunday enroute to Sheffield.

Maxie Lesser, Harry Glass, Claude McBride and George Clemm spent the weekend in Birmingham.

Roland and Clifton Compton spent Sunday at the Odd Fellows Home with their sister, Miss Mildred Compton.

Fred Swift of Hartselle, was here on business this morning.

Tribute to Agriculturist.
In a moral point of view, the life of the agriculturist is the most pure and holy of any class of men; pure, because it is the most healthful, and vice can hardly find time to contaminate it; and holy, because it brings the deity perpetually before his view, giving him thereby the most exalted notions of supreme power, and the most fascinating and endearing view of moral benignity.—Lord John Russell.

Chinese Mintage.
Minting coin seems to be a business enterprise in China which does not observe the business ethics of western countries. A Chinese mint appears to be run for profit by the persons who happen to have charge of it. So it has come about that one Chinese mint has actually counterfeited the coinage of another.—The Nation's Business.

Odd Superstitions.
In Java, when search is made for the body of a drowned person, a live sheep is thrown into the water, and is supposed to indicate the position of the body by sinking near it. To procure rain Peruvians used to set a black sheep in a field, pour oil over it, and give it nothing to eat till rain fell.

Washington Educational Center.
The District of Columbia is the largest center of learning in America, with its 100,300 pupils in colleges and schools, public and private. To familiarize one's self with the historic past of Washington is an education in itself.—Washington Star.

True Nobility.
Beyond all wealth or honor is the attachment we form to noble souls; because to become one with the good, generous, and true is to become in a measure good, generous and true ourselves.—Doctor Arnold.

NEW YORK PITCHERS STRONG THIS YEAR

NEW YORK—In their third attempt to win the world's baseball championship the New York Yankees will be aided by a staff of pitchers rated second to none in either of the major leagues.

Herbert J. Pennock, lefthander; Samuel Pond Jones, righthander and J. Robert Shawkey righthander, have been the Yankees' three best bets on the hurling mound. Waite Hoyt has had a good season, finishing well up on the winning side and Leslie Joseph Bush, while erratic at times, won a majority of his games. Carl Mays, the underhand flinger, was not up to his best form and had little to do.

It is unlikely that Mays will be started in the series, and it is probable that Bush, the fork-ball man may be used only in emergency. Pennock, Jones, Shawkey and Hoyt appear as likely mainstays and may work in that order.

An interesting sidelight in connection with the Yankee hurling corps is that every one of them first emerged to the limelight of stardom with the Boston Red Sox or the Philadelphia Athletics.

Pennock, who led the American League pitchers through the 1923 season and who was with Connie Mack's Athletics in 1912 and remained with the team until 1915 when he went to the Red Sox. He was acquired by the Yankees from the Boston club in a trade last Spring in exchange for several youngsters.

Jones, called "Sad Sam" played with Cleveland in 1914 and 1915 but 1916 found him with the Red Sox, where he remained until 1921. The Yankee tradesmen were busy again that year and "Sad Sam" became a New Yorker. He wasn't at his best in 1922, but 1923 brought him back to the top and he has done everything in the pitching line, including a no-hit game against the Athletics and some others almost as good.

Shawkey was a member of the Athletics from 1913 to 1915. He came to the Yankees in 1915 when Colonels Ruppert and Huston began building up their star combination and has been a regular ever since. His pitching arm worked exceptionally well this year.

Hoyt was taken from high school in Brooklyn in 1918 and made a New York Giant. He warmed benches for McGraw and became a Red Sox in 1919. In 1921 he donned a Yankee uniform and was one of the stars of the season. He won two games and lost a close one in the 1921 world's series. He was more or less of an in-and-outer last year but regained some of his great form in 1923.

Bush, a Mackman from 1912 to 1917 and a Red Stocking from 1918 to 1921, became a Yankee in 1922 in another New York-Boston trade. He was a star of stars in the 1922 season for the

Attempt Made to Rob Wright Hope

About midnight on Saturday an attempt was made to enter the home of Ernest Wright, 247 Johnston street.

A screen door was cut and unatched, but the timely barking of a watchdog scared the marauders away. Mr. Wright is superintendent of the silk mill and said all that had been missed was some tools stored in a garage.

Thought for the Day.
Too many people are more interested in the income than they are in the outcome.

Capital's Shade Trees

There are about 105,000 shade trees in the national capital. Practically every kind of tree that will grow in this climate is found. The main varieties planted along the streets and in the parks are sugar maple, sycamore, maple, red maple, elm, linden, tulip, poplar, sycamore, ash, pin oak, honey locust and horse chestnut. The American capital ranks as the best-shaded city in the world, Paris, France, being second.

Yankees but a surprising failure in the world's series with the Giants. Mays, with the Red Sox from 1915 to 1919, came to New York for the 1920 season.

BOARD MEETING.
The monthly meeting of the Morgan county board of revenue opened at the court house this morning at 9:30 o'clock and lasted three days of this week. Following routine work, a report was heard by the board from Dr. H. C. McRea, county health officer.

BIRTH.
Born to Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Gardner, a son, Roger Carlisle, on Saturday, Oct. 6. Weight 8 1-2 pounds.

Famous Treatment of Dr. Thacher Brought Here By Leading Dealers THOUSANDS NEARBY QUICKLY BENEFITED

Results Accomplished By Wonderful Tonic in Restoring Health, Strength and Energy Discussed All Over State.

Renowned Physician Who Compounded Great Medicine

DR. H. S. THACHER

Why have thousands of men, women and children come to Dr. Thacher for relief? Why did the offices and laboratory of this great Physician become a veritable Mecca for those who suffered from nervous exhaustion, indigestion, constipation, impoverished and impure blood, rheumatism and the many tired out, "headachy," "pepples" symptoms of a torpid liver and overtaxed stomach.

Why have thousands idolized him—and why have other physicians used and highly recommended this treatment? Because it has produced results in countless numbers of cases after other medicines failed.

Now, for the first time, you can enjoy this remarkable treatment in your own home. Leading dealers of Morgan County have brought Dr. Thacher's treatment to you—and you can prove for yourself how quickly it will nourish you back to health and strength. And you will feel like a different person when it has done for you what it has done for countless numbers of those in need of its vitalizing nourishment.

Build Yourself Up.
Start on the road to health today! Let Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup improve your appetite, stimulate your digestion and put your stomach in condition to assimilate the vital nourishment from food. Know what it means to enjoy your meals without suffering afterwards. Freedom from constipation, pure, healthy blood, steady nerves and sound digestion will give you a clearer mind, a better complexion and a more attractive personality. It will enable you to win back and retain that delightful feeling of strength, ambition and pep.

Dealers throughout this county first became interested in Dr. Thacher's treatment when they learned of the remarkable results it had produced in surrounding towns. Their interest was further stimulated by calls from numbers of summer visitors who told of almost miraculous cases of complete relief among their friends and in their own families after other medicines had failed.

Morgan County dealers realized the need for such a treatment here. They investigated and were more than gratified by what they learned.

Remarkable Facts.
Of unusual interest is the fact that of more than 110,000 bottles sold in two months in Pennsylvania and Ohio, only single bottle is sold under the guarantee that the purchase price will be cheerfully returned if Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood syrup fails to give complete satisfaction and relief.

A Standing Guarantee.
This liberal guarantee will hold good on every bottle in Morgan County. It means that Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup will not cost you a cent if it fails to improve your appetite, strengthen your digestion, help Nature purify your blood and relieve those sick, nervous headaches, biliousness, gas on stomach, shortness of breath, coated tongue and other symptoms of a torpid liver and weakened stomach. —For sale by Cadden Drug Co. THIRD GRAND PRIZE—Purchased of and on display at Morgan County Motor Company

Next Saturday night, the 13th, the extra vote, the largest in the great campaign decreases in value. This coming week-end it will be the extra vote schedule that will decrease. After this week-end, there will be a decrease in vote value of subscriptions every other week-end until the main contest closes. Something closing every week. One week the main schedule, and alternating weeks the extra votes decrease. If you didn't do as well as you expected last week, then this is the week you should recuperate your losses, before the extra vote schedule decreases in value. If you emerged from the battle last week well toward the top, then you should work hard this week to hold your position. You will win or lose on the 17th of November in exactly the same proportion that you produce votes and subscriptions get the most votes. Do not let over-confidence ruin your chances for success. Remember everyone has a chance until the last minute of the last hour on the 17th of November. Do not allow yourself to stand still and be beaten. Forge onward and upward. The prizes are well worth the effort—and when the campaign is over and you ride away in the machine that you have won during your spare hours for these weeks of interesting campaigning, you will be mighty pleased that you took part in the campaign. But now is your opportunity—not after the opportunity has gone—not after the contest is over. Starting this morning, there are six full weeks left to win the 15 prizes in The Decatur Daily great contest. Anyone could accomplish a great deal during these six weeks, if one had the determination to win. In fact anyone could enter the contest right now, or any time this coming week, and by diligent work and concentrated effort win any one of the three Automobiles, or any other prize on the great list. These prizes are all awarded on the number of votes each have secured during the campaign.

Two Trump Cards That Made Played for Dicky's Benefit.

FOUND the poultry shop fully up to Mrs. Schwartz's recommendation and selected two chickens, the firm and fresh color of which assured me that I could prepare them appetizingly for my fastidious guests.

With the knowledge that I had no time to waste in having my purchases delivered, I had bought an old-fashioned market basket at a store I had passed, and stowing away the chickens in it, I made my way home again, stopping at a grocery, a fruit and vegetable store, bakery and a fish-monger's on my way.

I took everything with me in the basket except the oysters, which the fish-monger promised to open and deliver ready for serving on the half shell at half after six. I planned to dinner for that hour because it was then that I expected the Braithwaites. Lillian and Marion would be in at five, but I knew I could get Lillian a cup of tea and Marion a glass of milk to tide them over until dinner-time.

The basket was a load, indeed, when I had placed my last purchase in it and I was conscious of curious glances from passers-by as I laboriously covered the last block of my journey, stopping every few feet to shift the weight of the basket from one hand to the other.

"This Thing," I said to myself, "is the love of Lulu, drop that."

Dicky's voice, low but irritated, sounded from the open door of a vehicle which had just drawn up to the curb. He alighted as he spoke.

ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION WILL HELP BULGARIA

SOFIA, Bulgaria.—The Rockefeller Foundation is about to embark on a campaign to develop sanitation and preventive medicine in Bulgaria. The first step has been the selection of a Bulgarian physician for a year of study and hospital practice in America; other selections will be made later.

Miss Elizabeth Crowell, of the foundation, has outlined a project for the establishment of a nurses' training school here which is to be submitted to the officers of the foundation in New York.

Dr. Edwin R. Embree, general secretary of the foundation, has inspected the hospitals of Sofia, and conferred with the minister of health.

PLAN MONUMENT AT GRAVES OF LINCOLN'S PARENTS

JANESVILLE, Ill.—After years of neglect the graves of Thomas and Sarah Lincoln, father and stepmother of Abraham Lincoln, are to be given attention.

These neglected mounds, in a nearby cemetery, are marked only by unmarked stones made rough by tourists who have chipped souvenirs from them.

The Illinois district of the Lions International has undertaken to raise funds among its members to erect a fitting monument at the graves.

BAYS ICE CREAM INDUSTRY FLOURISHES IN AMERICA

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—While it is generally accepted that ice cream was first made in Italy, perhaps at about the time America was discovered, it was left to the United States to develop the industry on a great scale.

Professor Martin Mortensen, head of the department of dairying of the Iowa State College, said today before the World Dairy Congress.

It is thought that ice cream was introduced into France about 1550, and the earliest printed record of it in England was found in a housekeeping magazine published in 1786. But it was not until 1851 that the first wholesale ice cream business was started by Jacob Russell in Baltimore. The ice cream business in the United States increased from 80,000,000 gallons in 1909 to 263,529,000 gallons in 1912. The ice cream cone, invented in 1904, was a great factor in making ice cream popular.

Prof. Mortensen attributed the great success of the industry to the sound business principles employed by the men who entered it. He said the rapid development of machinery, trade journals and instruction in colleges in the art of ice cream making had done much to increase the business.

Reptile to Be Avoided.

Centipedes have an exceedingly venomous bite, that of the giant centipede, a native of Venezuela, being almost equal to that of the viper. Unlike the scorpion, they do not sting, but bite by means of a pair of strong "forceps" placed horizontally at the mouth.

"You don't mean to tell me you're going to be idiot enough to try to get dinner in that dump upstairs?" "Suppose we wait to discuss it until we reach our rooms," I murmured, as a woman coming down the steps turned to stare at us.

He made no answer, and to my great relief, he did not speak again until he had finished his sulky ascent of the stairs and had dismissed the taxi-driver. Then he issued his ultimatum:

"You'll get no dinner here, or if you do, you'll eat it by yourself. I'll take the bunch to a restaurant. Of all the asinine ideas you've ever conceived, this has the longest ears of all." Get up a dinner on a two-hole gas-plate! Police! also page the fire department!"

"I had no intention of getting it on the gas-plate," I said calmly, clearing off the table and unpacking my purchases. I paid no more heed to his tirade than if he had not spoken, for I held two trump cards in my hand, one of which I played by unwrapping my parcels and revealing to Dicky the chickens and my other purchases, each a favorite dish of his. I saw his eyes light up involuntarily.

"What you trying to do—hand me a crossword puzzle to solve?" he snapped, but much of the truculence had oozed out of his voice.

"No, indeed," I answered soothingly, and then I explained my arrangement with the janitor's wife.

"Of course, if you insist upon taking them to a restaurant, why I'll cook the dinner and try to keep the dishes until we can eat them up later," I said meekly, "but I am afraid Harriet will object to having Edwin eat in a restaurant. You know how particular she is about his meals. But you can settle that with her when she gets here. Perhaps you can persuade her."

I had played my second trump card and I waited tensely to hear Dicky's reaction to it.
